transportation fees added in 2009, Howington said.

Also last week, the council approved:

n A road resurfacing contract to LHC for $448,565. The improvements will be funded with federal stimulus money.

n Appointments of Jason Mueller and Craig Woods to the Planning Board and Economic Development Revolving Loan Fund Committee, respectively.

n First reading of the adoption of the International Energy Conservation Code, 2009 edition, which was mandated by Congress. If council decides not to adopt the code, the city would not be able to enforce building codes, Howington said.

"People would build at their own risk," she said.
