Kissimmee wants to maintain impact fees

By Jeannette Rivera-Lyles, Orlando Sentinel

Kissimmee Commissioners have decided not to implement an impact-fee moratorium on new commercial construction similar to one adopted recently by Osceola County. Staff advised commissioners that it would be hard to make up for the $1.3 million in revenue that impact fees are expected to generate this year. Mayor Jim Swan instructed City Manager Mike Steigerwald to explore other ways to provide incentives to businesses. —Jeannette Rivera-Lyles
